WEARY OF LIFE.

James Anderson, Diseased and Desperate Strives to Take His Own Life.

James Anderson, a Tarrant county farmer, very well known in this city, arrived day before yesterday and put his horse—he rode in—at the Central wagon yard. Yesterday morning he applied to Dr. Brooks for treatment for a serious disorder. Finding him suffering from neuralgia, Dr. Brooks added fifteen grains of morphine to other prescriptions, giving him careful directions as to taking it. As soon as Anderson left the drug store he took all the morphine at one dose, and immediately went to Brunswig's, where he purchased a sixty cent James Anderson, a Tarrant county wig's, where he purchased a sixty cent bottle of the same drug. Mr. Eugene Smith who waited on him, watched his motions, and seeing him begin eating the drug, recovered it and tele-phoned for police, Joe Witcher, Jim Tomason and M. B. Davis came on the summons and took Anderson to Mr. Davis' boarding house where Docto r Brooks, after a desperate struggle with the deadly drug, restored Anderson. At one time he was about across the river. At noon he became ungovernable and officers Riggle and Melton were sent for; the officers reting on advices officers acting on advice of Doctor Brooks and others, locked Anderson up, hoping that a night in prison would cure him of his rashness.

He made a desperate fight against the officers at the arrival at the calaboose, and for hours after incarceration made the neighborhood a disagreeable made the heighborhood a disagreeable locality by uttering awful yells heard for many blocks around. From papers found on Anderson's person, it is learned he is an Englishman and lately sent £8 sterling to Lewis Grant, of Hebburn-on-Tyne, No 10 Church street, presumably to enable Grant to come to this country. One letter in Anderson's possession is a letter in Anderson's possession is a tax receipt of Collector Elliston for $7 34, taxes paid March 3d, on $1,015 worth of property situated in the northen part of this county. TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

What the Children of the First Ward are Taught, and How the Instruction is Given.

One week ago an account of the proceedings of the teachers' institute which met at Prof. Lacy's school, was given in these columns. Yesterday the teachers again assembled in the First ward at the Calleway building. Mrs. M. Sue Warren, principal, and Mrs. Thos. Heek, Miss Lula Dial and Miss Jennie Howard, assistants. The superintendent, principals of other schools, teachers and citizens, were present to see how the pupils had progressed. Mrs. Warner, with that refinement characteristic of the true teacher, had the room nicely decorated, pictures on the side walls, with the motto "welcome" there is early and evergreen on the done in eard and evergreen on the front wall. A line at the top of the blackboard enjoined, "Let every thought and action be worthy of the cognizance of the world."

The less n was on practical arithmetic, and the way the boys and girls handled the nest intricate problems in fractions, adding, dividing and multiplying, showed that the work which had been done by the earnest minds in charge of the school, was thorough and practical. Mrs. Warren conducted the exercises, showing by her manner, and the rapid response of the pupils that they were in arithmetic were concluded Mrs. Warren illustrated her system of instruction in spelling. Ten words are given to the scholars who are expected to return the next day, ten sentences with the words in them, correctly spelled and their meaning thoroughly explained. This system worked admirably, the boys and girls showing in the sentences read that they were fully abreast of the times, knowing what was going on in the world. Mrs. Warren recognizing the daily paper as a great educator, stated that every morning she took the Ga-ZETTE to the school room and read to her pupils the record of the day's events. The six words to which sentences will be built on Monday next are taxes, conceive, transmitted canal, invincible and holocaust. After the spelling exercise two mites of boys, Eph and Alex Eichenbaum, pupils of Mrs. Heck went to the front audience was dismissed. HORRIBLE DEATH.

A Johnson County Farmer Jumps From a Train Going Thirty Miles an Hour.

y Dashes Out His Brains and Breaks His Neck.

Thursday morning Conductor Low-oll of the Santa Fe, had as a passenger on his train a wealthy Johnson county farmer, J. J. Barrett who lives forty-two miles from this city, one mile this side of Blum Station. Mr. Barrett being of the opinion that he could get off the train while in motion without injury to himself and save a walk of a mile from the station to his house, when the train neared his home he stepped to the platform of the rear car and jumped. The result was horrifying, the man's head struck a tree and human brains were scattered for yards around, the head was literally knocked from the shoulders and the body terribly bruised. The train was backed up and what could be gathered together of the unfortunate man's body was placed in a box, taken to Blum and then sent home to where the horror-stricken wife and children, who had been notified by a runner were awaiting what was mortal of the arher and husband.
